DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- 1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:
 - (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.
- 2. Claims 21 and 22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Barthel et al., previously cited, in view of Kraus et al. 6,062,010 and Knurr et al. 5,022,219.

Barthel et al. discloses a machine for conditioning crops including:

- a first pair of oppositely rotatable rolls (4), with rolls that are relatively movable toward and away from one another
- A second pair of oppositely rotatable rolls (5), with rolls that are relatively movable toward and away from one another
- A tension mechanism coupled to both pairs of rolls (Column 3, lines 52-59)

The tension mechanism includes a tension spring from each pair of rotatable rolls. However, the tension mechanism in Barthel et al. is not hydraulic cylinder with a hydraulic circuit as claimed but a tension spring.

Like Barthel et al., Kraus et al. discloses a tension mechanism. Unlike Barthel et al. Kraus et al. expressly teaches that hydraulic cylinders (37, 38) are an alternative to tension springs (Column 6, lines 60-61).

Like Barthel et al. and Kraus et al., Knurr et al. discloses a tension mechanism for a pair of rolls in a crop-conditioning machine with a hydraulic cylinder. Unlike Barthel et al. and Kraus et al., Knurr et al. teaches providing the hydraulic cylinder with a hydraulic circuit that allows the tensioning force to be adjusted (Column 1, lines 54 – Column 2, lines 11). The hydraulic cylinder includes a valve 162 and a compressible gas accumulator (Column 6, line 3).

Given the suggestion in Kraus et al., it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to replace the tension springs of Barthel et al. with a hydraulic cylinder as taught in Kraus et al. and to provide the hydraulic circuit in Knurr et al. in order to provide hydraulic fluid.

Regarding claim 22, each roll in Barthel et al. is capable of being controlled independently since there are two different springs and in the combination they would each have their own valve.

Allowable Subject Matter

- 3. Claims 4-8, 11-14 and 26-31 are allowed.
- 4. Claims 23 and 25 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments with respect to claim 21-22 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground of rejection.

The Kraus et al. reference has been added to the rejection to over come Applicant's amendments.

Conclusion '

6. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
